Purpose	The Internet is available to all students for educational research and learning. All students access the Internet via the school's servers and infrastructure which is the property of Ravenswood School and therefore should be considered public.
Overview	Students are responsible for limiting their use of the Internet at school to completing research and projects forming part of their education. The school uses Internet filter and management software to reduce access to unacceptable sites and/or web content. Ultimately, it is the responsibility of each girl to use the Internet ethically and to follow the school guidelines when using the internet.
Scope	This policy applies to all Ravenswood students.
The Policy	In keeping with our guiding principles for acceptable behaviour, we are concerned that use of the Internet: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Is in line with the school's Guiding Principles • is safe for everyone • is considerate of everyone who might be affected in its use • reflects well on the student, her family and her school. At Ravenswood, acceptable internet usage is defined as: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • research for class work and for study in support of and consistent with the educational objectives and values of the school • abiding by the 'Student Email Procedural Guidelines' • set learning activities organized by Ravenswood staff • abiding by copyright procedures when using content from electronic sources. The Policy is signed by all girls and their parents in Years 3-12 upon enrolment. By signing, each student agrees to ensure her own safety by: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • never agreeing to meet someone online without first checking with both a teacher and a parent or guardian, and getting explicit permission from them • not revealing any personal details when using any Internet website • not accessing non-school based webmail, chat or any social networking sites unless instructed by a teacher as part of a of the environment.

Access to the Internet is a privilege not a right. If there is evidence that a student has broken the conditions of this acceptable use policy, her access to Ravenswood's Information and Communications Technology services will be suspended, and there is the possibility of loss of access for an extended period of time and further consequences.

Educational Use of the Internet

Students are allocated a weekly quota amount which more than enough for educational research and classroom Internet lessons. If a student reaches her quota, she will need to request an extension. Students should ensure that they have sufficient Internet quota left in their account for class work and educational research.
